

Congress, Held In Check By Administration, Slow In Getting Under Way

WASHINGTON — To veteran Washington observers there is a marked difference in the getting under way of this Congress from those in the past.

Other sessions by this time would be bustling with activity, committees would be busy and the clang of battle would be resounding on the floors.

But this session has got going with one yawn after another.

This is due to two reasons: First, the Administration is sitting firmly on the lid of all legislation so as to give the right of way to its program, which is being doled out piecemeal.

Second, this Congress is the first in its 148-year old history that it has convened fresh from the polls.

Previously thirteen months and a "lame duck" session intervened before the newly-elected members took office.

This lapse of time enabled them to get acclimated and into harness. It made for a greater continuity in the tempo of Congress.

It also gave "lame duck" marvelous opportunities for log-rolling, back grabbing and other piggy-back deals.

Which was why after a decade of effort, Senator George Norris' amendment abolishing "lame duck" session finally was written into the Constitution.

Surprised

Sandy haired Joe Kennedy, Boston Irish Chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, is still mopping his brow.

The House Appropriations Committee had slashed next year's grant for his Commission from $2,300,000 recommended by the Budget Bureau to $1,800,000. After vehement protest by Joe the Committee finally added $200,000 bringing the total to $2,000,000.

This was the condition of the SEC appropriation when it went to the Senate Appropriation Committee.

Joe, insisting that unless the remaining $300,000 was granted, the work of the SEC would be seriously crippled, prepared to do battle with the Senate committee.

The outlook, however, was gloomy.

Head of the Committee is Virginia's dyspeptic Carter Glass, last year when the bill creating the Commission was under consideration, Carter was icy cold.

Nevertheless, Joe insisted on going before the committee.

On the way to Capitol Hill, assistants accompanying him were pessimistic.

"Joe," they said, "this guy Glass is tough. If we escape with our skins we'll be lucky."

"It certainly looks bad," Kennedy agreed. "I called the Senator at his home last night and he told me not to come. Maybe I shouldn't have come. It might irritate him."

Glass was waiting for Joe. But not in the mood he had feared.

The little Virginian was gracious, friendly, courteous.

"The Chairman of the Commission," he informed his colleagues, "has a statement to make, one I know we will all be very glad to hear."

Joe was so startled at the cordial reception that it took him several moments to collect himself.

Glass' friendliness was more than a gesture.

When the SEC appropriation was reported out by his committee, the additional $300,000 had been added to the grant.

Mercury Expected to Rise
In Midwest

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 25—Rampaging flood waters, having taken a toll of at least nineteen lives and made desolate a vast 50 mile area in the Delta country, pushed southward today to threaten a half dozen other communities.

Strenuous efforts were being made to protect Darling, Marks, Lambert, Crowder, Vance and other towns from being engulfed by the raging waters of the Coldwater river. A broken levee was letting the flood waters into Darling from the south.

From a survey made by Major T. B. Birdsong to Gov. Sennett Conner it was estimated that more than 16,000 persons were made homeless in the flood area of Coldwater basin in and about sledge.

HUNDREDS TRAPPED

Hundreds were believed still trapped in trees and on barns and houses. Rescue boats were bringing in refugees to be sheltered and fed at temporary concentration camps that dotted the higher terrain. Scores suffered from exposure.

Several cases of pneumonia were reported among the homeless refugees, and Red Cross physicians said there was danger of an epidemic of influenza. Gov. Conner requested that a Red Cross fund be raised.

Near freezing weather was expected to give way today to warmer temperatures.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25—

Continued warm weather was forecast for southern California today after the mercury reached a high of 85 during the last 24 hours.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25—Middle western states came out from under winter's severest cold wave today.

The weather man predicted a reading of 30 above for Chicago today.

BRICKER EXEMPTS SCHOOL LUNCHES

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25—Food sold in school rooms operated by boards of education was held today by Attorney General John W. Bricker to be exempt from the sales tax, but the tax must be paid upon food, school supplies and on other articles sold in school stores conducted by groups of pupils, by teachers, parent-teacher groups or similar organizations.

Bricker held that the lunch rooms conducted by boards need not be licensed as "vendors" under the new sales tax law, but ruled that in the case of stores operated by groups other than the board, "vendors" licenses should be obtained and the tax collected on all articles.

CRITES CROSS EXAMINATION CONTINUES IN COURT TODAY

Case To Be Adjourned This Afternoon; Appraiser On Stand Thursday.

The hearing of the suit of H. M. Crites against Crites, Inc., creditors' organization, in which the local man is seeking a receiver for four canning factories and some farm property is scheduled to be adjourned late this afternoon until sometime during the week of February 4.

Mr. Crites remained on the witness stand the greater part of Thursday and was questioned throughout Friday morning. Some disinterested person entering the court room of Judge J. W. Adkins would think Mr. Crites was on trial instead of his suit. It has been a long while since an individual has been through such a strenuous cross examination as Attorney Nathan Haffenberg for Crites, Inc. has put Mr. Crites through.

Mr. Haffenberg buried the charge this morning that while Mr. Crites was acting as an agent of Crites, Inc., he was attempting to stir up litigation.

When he will finish the cross examination is not certain. He may not conclude today.

Mr. Crites' sons, Meinhard and George, have yet to testify and there are several other witnesses to be called, some by Crites, Inc.

GRAND JURY CALLED

There will be no court Saturday nor can the case be resumed next week. The grand jury which has eight or ten cases to investigate this session will probably require only one day but attorneys in the Crites case cannot come here the latter part of the week. On February 4 trial of the $15,000 damage suit of the estate of Russell Dowden against Robert C. Peters will begin. This may take two days and it is thought probable the trial will be resumed on Wednesday of that week.

One defense witness was interrogated Thursday afternoon interrupting Mr. Crites' cross examination. He was Robert L. Early, of the Cincinnati firm of Early and Daniels. Early affirmed the Crites milling properties for the First National bank of St. Louis before they were sold to the Ralston-Purina Co. He said his appraisal valued the properties as follows: S. Court-st. $40,000 to $45,000, west side, $2,000 to $2,500; E. Mount-st. $1,000 to $1,500; Bell's siding, $1,000 to $2,000; Kinderhook, $1,000 to $1,500; Mt. Sterling, $1,500, New Holland, $2,000 and Cook's station $4,000.

The Ralston-Purina Co. paid $50,000 for all the properties.

The Crites suit charges the properties were sold at a figure much lower than their actual value.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25—John Wrobel of Bloomingburg, who has been fined by the Fayette-co courts for violating provisions of the bakery code, was ordered to surrender his Blue Eagle by regional NRA director Benedict Crowell, the Ohio Recovery administration announced today.

Wrobel was charged by recovery officials with working his employees 77 hours a week without overtime pay while the code stipulated a 40-hour working week. In announcing the latest development in the case, the recovery administration said:

"His chief defense seems to have been his army career, which has been extensively advertised during the litigation which has been in progress several months. His is the first case where the federal government has ordered the removal of the Blue Eagle."

5 OHIOANS LISTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Five Ohioans were listed among passengers on the steamship Mohawk, which sank last night near Sea Girt, N. J., officials of the Ward line announced today.

cue vessels, an unconfirmed report said that one passenger and 21 members of the crew had been picked up by the United Fruit steamer Limon. It was reported the latter vessel had transferred the rescued to the coast guard cutter Icarus.

LINE LISTS MISSING

The Ward line officially announced that 15 passengers and 17 crew members were missing.

Ninety-five passengers and crew were brought into New York city aboard the Algonquin, sister ship of the Mohawk.

Twenty-two other survivors — one passenger and 21 members of the crew — were landed by the Champlain at Staten Island.

There were 163 persons — 53 passengers and 110 crew members — aboard the Mohawk when she collided with the Norwegian freighter Talsman at 9:30 p. m. last night. She sank four miles off Seagirt, N. J., not far from the graveyard of the Morro Castle, another ill-starred ship of the Ward line.

However, the figures of the Ward line did not agree with the estimate of the missing given by the division commander of the U. S. coast guard. He said that 57 persons were unaccounted for, according to his records. He added that some of this number may have been picked up by boats without the knowledge of coast guard officials.

Survivors said they believed Captain Joseph E. Wood, skipper of the Mohawk, went down with his ship, as he was still on board when the last life boat was launched.

Herner To Block Confirmation
Until Questions Are Answered; Jaster First.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25—Possibility that confirmation of some of Governor Davey's new department heads may be held up in the rules committee started to interview the new appointees.

Opposition to M. L. Brown, chief of the division of aid for the aged in the state welfare department was the focal point which Senator W. H. Herner (D), of Norwalk, indicated would probably stir up some dissension in the rules committee.

Herner said he intended to find out from Mrs. Margaret Allman, of Canton, new welfare director, whether Brown is to be retained as chief of the division, before he votes to recommend her confirmation by the senate.

The Norwalk senator declined to state his objections to Brown and denied that he was interested in the candidacy of any other applicant for the post. Herner added that this was only one of several matters he wanted to see cleared up before the committee.

Senator Paul P. Yoder (D) of Dayton, chairman of the rules committee, denied that there is any indication confirmation of the new appointees may be held up.

"These interviews between members of the rules committee and the new department heads are only a matter of form," he said. "I hope members of the committee will not place the new appointees in an embarrassing position."

John Jaster Jr., Cleveland, was the first department head called before the committee. The state highway director met with committee members in the senate shortly before noon.

ENTERS DENIAL TO NOTES AND BABY'S DEATH

Voice Quivers With Excitement as Hauptmann Replies to Reilly

"NEVER SAW CHILD"

Crowd Gasps As He Is Handed Garment

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

COURTROOM, Flemington, N. J., Jan. 25—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, in a voice quivering with excitement, denied on the witness stand today he kidnaped and murdered the Lindbergh baby. He denied, too, that he had written the ransom notes.

"No!" he cried when Edward J. Reilly, chief counsel for the defense, asked him if he had ever seen the baby.

Hauptmann declared the first he knew of the kidnaping of the child was when he bought a newspaper on the morning of March 2, 1932—the day after the abduction.

The man accused of the crime which shocked the world talked in firm tones. He was the cynosure of every eye in the courtroom which was jammed to the last available inch of space. He was neatly dressed in grey and seemed composed.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh sat fifteen feet from the witness chair, his eyes never leaving the pale, poker-face of the 36-year-old carpenter who was telling his remarkable story to a jury of four women and eight men. Lindbergh's face was inscrutable.

JURY ATTENTIVE

The jury drank in Hauptmann's every word. They watched every move of the strange figure in the witness chair.

So did the spectators, most of whom were women. The quiet of the courtroom was broken only by Hauptmann's short, crisp assertions and the booming voice of his chief counsel. The spectators were an odd assortment. Some were plain folks from Hunterdon-co. Others were "big shots" from Broadway. And, too, there was a mixture of bankers, brokers and business men here from all parts of the country.

A great galaxy of newspaper men sitting at tables stretching across the front of the courtroom and turning at right angles down to the rear of the courtroom scribbled madly as they put down on paper Hauptmann's own story for a waiting world.

A gasp came from the crowd at one point when Reilly, showing Hauptmann the Lindbergh baby's sleeping suit, asked him if he had taken it. The witness, in sharp tones, replied:

"I never saw the baby dead or alive."

Hauptmann was shown the fourteen ransom notes. He denied he had written any of them. He denied he had ever seen Dr. John "Jafse" Condon, the Lindbergh intermediary who testified he paid

Questions and Answers

I would like to ask why a cheese cake drops or falls after baking?

Your method of baking is probably the cause of your lack of success. Place your cake in the center of the oven and bake it at a temperature of 450 degrees for the first ten minutes, then reduce the heat to 350 degrees, and continue to bake for 40 to 45 minutes.

Please tell me the correct way to eat chicken, bacon and celery. Should any of them be eaten from the fingers?

Chicken is properly not a finger food. Remove the meat from the bone with the knife and fork. Bacon, when very crisp, brittle and dry, is sometimes eaten from the fingers, otherwise a fork is used. Celery is a finger food. The ends of the stalks may be dipped in salt, if desired.

May I ask for suggestions for refreshments to serve at the meeting of a literary club when the theme for the afternoon is English?

For a small group, nothing could be more typically English than muffins, or crumpets, and tea. For a larger group, tiny assortments of waffles, bread and butter English style, shortbread or flat cakes, plum cake or pound cake, crystallized ginger and tea are suitable.

Do all chocolate cakes crack on top in baking?

A chocolate cake that cracks on top is baked at too high a temperature, or contains too great a proportion of chocolate for the other ingredients. Try reducing the quantity of chocolate and see if your cake will turn out better.

What is the difference between black and green tea?

Black tea is fermented green tea. Black tea derives its strength, body and color of infusions from the fermentation, which is an oxidation process that develops the tea aroma. Green tea is stronger and more harsh than the mellow fermented black tea.

I have tried the prepared cake mixtures on the market and in increasing or reducing the quantity, I sometimes find a part can left over. Is there any chance for this opened portion to deteriorate, or is it safe to use that portion later?

Prepared mixtures for cake or biscuits may be opened, partially used and if tightly covered, there will be no harmful effects observed in the batter.

Do you have a recipe for an inexpensive chocolate cake that is light and fluffy?

This is one of my favorite chocolate cake recipes and it is well-liked because it is so tender and fluffy.

Chocolate Cake

- Cream together: 1 C. sugar, 1 1/2 Tbsp. butter
- Beat in: 1 egg yolk and 3/4 C. cocoa melted with a little warm water
- Sift together: 1 1/2 C. flour, measured before sifting, 1 tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. soda

Add flour alternately with 1 C. sour milk. Beat well after each addition of ingredients. Bake in two layers at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Use a seven minute frosting for filling and topping.

Saved by new Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil in tasteless tablets.

Pounds of firm healthy flesh instead of bare scraggy bones! New vigor, vim and energy instead of tired listlessness! Steady, quiet nerves! A young mother who could not eat or sleep after baby came got all her health back and gained 10 lbs. in less than a month.

You simply must try McCoy's at once. Remember if you don't gain at least 3 lbs. of firm healthy flesh in a month get your money back. Do send and get McCoy's—the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets—approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Refuse all substitutes—insist on the original McCoy's—there are none better.

HELPS CUYAHOGA

The $19,000,000 partial appropriation bill and one giving counties permission to hold special elections to vote taxes outside the limitation for statutory welfare purposes were the two measures passed by both branches. The latter was rushed through especially to aid Cuyahoga county.

Next Monday night the lawmakers will begin considering the 127 bill introduced to date, 84 in the House and 43 in the Senate and in all probability add a dozen new ones to the list.

Almost every conceivable topic is covered by the proposed legislation, but the members, surfeited with taxation at the last session, are paying scant attention to it now. Later, when the productivity of the new sales tax is determined, they must buckle down and either extend it beyond Jan. 1, 1936, or substitute some alternative revenue-raising measure. The odds at present are heavily in favor of re-enacting the sales tax.

Observers foresaw early senate concurrence in a House bill extending the so-called mortgage moratorium from next Feb. 1 to April 1, 1937. This measure authorizes the courts to suspend the order for sale of homes on which mortgages are foreclosed.

After passing Sen. W. H. Herne's bill to pay agents one per cent instead of one-tenth of one per cent for handling prepaid sales receipts, the senate decided that one per cent in some cases would be excessive and recalled the bill from the house.

Mayor Harry L. Davis of Cleveland suffered a momentary setback when the House refused to pass the Pollock bill until after it had been examined by the House taxation committee. This measure, designed especially to aid Cleveland, would permit cities at a special election to vote deficiency bond issues by a bare majority to provide money for current operating expenses.

Rep. W. M. Boyd (D) Cleveland, introduced the first bill to alter the new sales tax act. It provides for the exemption of all food except that sold in restaurants. The law now exempts only bread and milk among foods.

A measure certain to prove popular with officeholders was sponsored by Rep. Jesse Gilbert (D) Dayton, to fix the term of all county officials at four years. Many now serve only two years.

DOWN-HEARTED? A UNANIMOUS NO!

It may be hard to teach your legs to do things after they've had a battle with a flock of infantile paralysis germs, but little Carrie Surlak of New York isn't downhearted about it, as the picture (lower left) plainly indicates. Carrie is showing her legs a thing or two with the help of Miss Constance Huerstel. Nor has she anything on the 15-year-old lad smiling from a respirator (right). He is Herbert

These four and more than 200,000 fellow-sufferers throughout the nation will be beneficiaries of the 1935 Birthday Ball for the President, Jan. 30, when more than 5,600 communities from coast to coast unite to raise funds for fighting what Col. Henry L. Doherty, national chairman of the Birthday Ball committee, calls "the most-dreaded disease menacing the nation". Seventy cents of every dollar raised will be retained by local communities to rehabilitate infantile paralysis victims, while thirty cents of every dollar will be turned over to a Birthday Ball Commission for Infantile Paralysis Research appointed by the President.

MONROE-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

The per cent of attendance has been lowered quite a bit this week due to whooping cough and colds.

Material is being secured for two programs in February, one on Feb. 14, for P.T.A. and the other Feb. 22 in one room.

SOCIAL NEWS

The program of the Parent-Teacher Association at Monroe school on Jan. 17, was the best given this year as the members themselves showed that they each had talents of their own. Mrs. Bessie McCoy gave a piano selection, "The Minuet in G." Mrs. Marie Dick recited one of her favorite poems, "The Children's Hour." The old-fashioned spelling class was very well portrayed by Mrs. Marie Walters as the teacher, Alvin Sanders, Bertha Porter, Faye Burchnell, Elizabeth Hosler, Nellie

Barton, Albert Burchnell and Robert Barton as her pupils. A short reading by Mrs. Josie Drake, Mrs. Lulu Sheets proved herself a talented musician in her piano interpretation of the Burning of Rome.

Earl Liston had many of the members thinking up answers to his questions from the query box. Mr. Perry Lewis gave an interesting selection of his original poems of Monroe township. Mr. Barton assisted by Robert and Joseph Walters, and Mr. Sanders, gave several most amusing musical selections. The finale was a song by the entire group of entertainers.

The honor students for the 3rd six weeks and the first semester in the Junior class are: Opal Hamilton, Mary L. Stoer, Cleo Crawford, Mabel Downs, Louise Zimmerman, Cloise Hosler, Mary M. Parrett.

The third six weeks and semester honor roll for the Senior class is as follows: Violet Thompson, Mary J. Walters, Cleo Timmons.

The honor students of the Freshmen are: Ruth Haller, Betty Seward, Weldon Hill, Grace Peart, Carl Hosler, Urcel McGath, Elizabeth Carter; first semester, Carl Hosler, Urcel McGath, Elizabeth Carter.

The honor students of the Sophomores for the third six weeks are: Kathryn Kniesley and Hazel Smith.

The ending of the first semester brought to a close the Physical Geography and Community Civics for the high school and Hygiene for the eighth grade.

Geography and Hygiene have been replaced by Agriculture, and Occupations blend very well with the former Civics course.

In the Occupations class each member is working on a chosen occupation, studying its value, future, and other features in that particular field. It will cause the pupil an extreme amount of research to bring the study to completion.

Both the boys and girls teams of Monroe were defeated by Darbyville last Friday night on the Darbyville floor. The final scores were Girls, 14-7; Boys, 32-4.

There's a very good reason why doctors and hospitals have always used liquid laxatives! You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

People who have experienced this comfort, never return to any form of help that can't be regulated! The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit—even in children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. It's a family doctor's prescription, and perfectly safe and effective for family use.

If you are seeking something that will relieve your occasional upsets safely and comfortably, try Syrup Pepsin. Give regulated doses until Nature restores regularity.

Just what is meant by cross-blending tobaccos...and how does it make a cigarette milder and taste better...

Well, in blending you take two or more tobaccos and mix them together—a rather simple process. But cross-blending goes a step further...

IN making Chesterfields we take Bright tobacco from Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida. We take Burley tobacco from Kentucky and Tennessee, and tobacco from Southern Maryland.

Then in addition to these home-grown tobaccos we take tobacco grown in Turkey and Greece.

We balance these mild, ripe home-grown tobaccos with the right amounts and the right kinds of aromatic Turkish.

Then, instead of just mixing the tobaccos together, we blend and cross-blend them so that all the different flavors go together into one full flavor—the Chesterfield taste that so many smokers like.

Cross-blending tobaccos as it is done in Chesterfields gives the cigarette a pleasing taste and aroma—they're mild and yet They Satisfy.

PATTERN 9237

A house frock, when it's nicely tailored and has a bit of flattery besides in the way of prettily scalloped collar and cuffs, steps right out of the class of purely practical clothes and becomes charmingly feminine. And this clever design has further appeal—for its slenderizing, too. Notice the way the front seam of the skirt juts out into a chic triangle, a detail that does grand things for larger hips! The pointed bodice closing repeats this slimming motif above the waist. And don't overlook that trim slit pleat that insures plenty of room in the back bodice—and the perky little inverted pleat at the back of the skirt for freedom.

Pattern 9237 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 36 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

She Trains Leaders

Miss Julia Capen

Miss Julia Capen is secretary with the National Young Women's Christian association, and specializes in the training of volunteer leaders. She recently returned to New York from Texas and Oklahoma, where she held seminars on the work. The young women who, when they were young, took an active part in club work, are many of them using their leisure time in helping with community programs, she states. "One of the most convincing arguments for the programs of character building agencies, such as the Y. W. C. A., is found in the number of young women who, because of their participation in such organizations, are now interested in giving their spare time and becoming leaders in the work," says Miss Capen.

Vendors' Licenses

A LARGE number of business people in this community are due for a rude shock when they finally awaken to the definite provisions of the new Ohio bracketed retail sales tax which becomes effective Saturday, at midnight.

Records in the office of the county auditor show that many business men have not yet taken out the retailer vendors' licenses which are definitely required by the act, and without which no one can sell at retail after next Saturday.

The law requires that every person or corporation making sales at retail must have a license. This includes not only operators of places which are generally regarded as retail stores, but covers as well manufacturers, wholesalers, many service industries, itinerant canvassers, restaurants, boarding houses, bars, and many other places which are commonly regarded as retail establishments. Any person or concern which sells tangible personal property to the final consumer, unless his sales are limited to the specifically exempted items, must take out this license.

Without such a license, these vendors cannot secure from the county treasurer a supply of the new prepaid tax receipts issued by the state of Ohio, which must be used after Saturday in connection of the new bracketed sales tax. The law requires every person selling at retail to collect the full amount of the bracketed tax on each transaction and to give the consumer a receipt in the form of one of these state-issued coupons. These are now on sale to licensed retail vendors at the county treasurer's office.

The state has ample means to compel all business men to comply with this new law. Those who sell to the final consumer and who do not collect the tax in the manner prescribed, may be subjected to fine and imprisonment. Furthermore, state inspectors have a complete right to enter any establishment and assess the vendor the full amount of the tax which he should have collected, plus a heavy penalty. A large corps of state inspectors will be on the job from the start, and ignorance of the law will be no defense against prosecution.

Wages On Public Projects

BEING somewhat of a star-gazing utopian, Norman Thomas, an enlightened gentleman whose idealism is not to be questioned, has dotedly evaded a discussion of the practical phases of the president's plan for the employment of men on public works at "security wages."

Through the fulfillment of this plan, Mr. Thomas charges, the United States government will become "the outstanding force in lowering the American standard of living." At the same time, he insists, it will deliver a devastating blow at the principle of high wages in private employment and will hasten the processes of regimentation.

His comment is interesting, but deficient in major respects. Instead of so-called "security wages," what compensation would he pay the millions who would be the beneficiaries of the president's plan? Would he establish a generous wage scale to provide all of the necessities and some of the luxuries of life? And, if so, from whence would the money come?

These are intensely practical questions, and if Mr. Thomas is disposed to be critical of the president's plan he should at least be ready with acceptable answers. In fact, higher wages than those proposed cannot be paid and it is questionable if they are desirable.

The administration and the country had an unfortunate experience with the CWA last winter, when the wage scale seriously interfered with private industry in some sections and moderately in others. The public projects should be made to bridge the gap between direct relief or the dole and a real job in private industry. That objective justifies the principle enunciated by the president on the matter of compensation.

This principle is that the pay of the unemployed to be given work on the public emergency projects "should be larger than the amount now received as a relief dole," but not so large "as to encourage the rejection of opportunities for private employment or the leaving of private employment to engage in government work."

Fred Perry is the latest tennis player would turn amateur, that might be news.

Who can recall the good old days when a billion-dollar congress was accepted as the forerunner of doom?

The gold issue is immensely interesting at the moment, but for many of us, unfortunately, the interest is altogether too academic

Little Sister

by MARGARET WIDDERMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Lella Madison, an orphan, has been trying to halt the elopement of her reckless young sister, Bet, with Addison Huntington, a romantic radical. Jerry Redmond, a newspaper reporter, has been aiding Lella because of his friendship for Addison's brother who was Jerry's college roommate. They are all at Lella's Westchester home where Addison and Jerry meet Aunt Minnie and her neighbor, Mrs. Johnston-Hedges, mother of Orion Johnston-Hedges, whom Lella expects to marry. They have come from Bet's New York apartment where Addison, disguised as a girl, narrowly escaped the police who sought him for questioning in connection with the whereabouts of an acquaintance named Jarecki, an alleged forger. Aunt Minnie tells Addison about the improvements and how the old residents of Fernwood Manor are trying to keep their bathing beach exclusive property. This shocks Addison's socialistic philosophy. Jerry phones next day and arranges an outing with Lella. Meanwhile Orion drops in to see Lella. Orion hints at a formal proposal but Lella isn't as excited as she expected to be. The next day Jerry arrives for their outing and drives off with Lella. Lella finds herself enjoying her interlude. As Jerry's magnetism engulfs Lella, her heart beats faster. Jerry prints a new world and finally embraces Lella. As he bids her goodbye at the suburban station, he abruptly brings them both back to earth. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 25

LEILA LAY awake that night contemplating Mayan dream-temple and Chinese dream-bands so long that she awakened later than usual next morning. The factitious summer warmth was gone; it was dark and chilly even for April, and they had turned off the oil heater the night before. She must get up and turn it on.

She was arrested midway in her dressing by the amazing portent of Bet's voice at the bottom of the stairs, announcing that she would be late for breakfast if she didn't hurry. This from Bet, who usually had to be awakened twice to greet her when? When? How did you get the money? He answered categorically, with modest pride.

"About four acres of marshland on the edge of the sound, just beyond Fernwood Gardens. Fernwood Waters, our friend called it. Of course, there are searches, I think she said, and other formalities, which will take a week or 10 days to complete, but the actual purchase took place yesterday. I did not need necessary to do more than go down and look at the tract, as my purpose was not anything more than holding it, so that I might have the right to vote at the meeting of property holders scheduled to take place in October. As I understand the law, the majority of the property holders of the Fernwoods then vote that the Manor has no right to keep its beach for itself, the beach is freed. I also understand that if sufficient tracts of land in my property have various owners, it will in all probability swing the election in the right direction. Miss Sternberg is very intelligent, she explained everything to us."

She interrupted him in horror. "The Church marshlands! With all those idiotic provisions in old Mr. Church's will? And where did you get the money? Did you use what Jerry brought you?"

"I did. A thousand dollars. A fresh start in California seemed to me negligible beside the opportunity of doing this civic duty. Also—"

"We took my bonds," proclaimed Bet proudly. "My $5,000, and Aunt Minnie's $10,000. Jerry's wasn't enough money, so I got my bonds out from Aunt Minnie's safe, and she lent hers and it just did it."

The three faces turned to her angrily. "It will be so wonderful to have a man around the house," added Aunt Minnie.

"You've done a dishonorable thing as well as a risky one," Lella said to them furiously. "That money wasn't loaned you to buy lots with. And the interest on those bonds dressed you and fed you, Bet, you little fool, and paid all of your studio rent. I don't pay."

"You are talking like a very selfish woman," Bet said, even more angrily.

"Hush, darling," said Addison gently. "Remember she doesn't understand. We will say no more, Lella; your ideas and ours are incompatible. Aunt Minnie, could I ask you for the materials for two more waffles? The air out here is giving me an appetite."

"That's splendid," said Aunt Minnie, and picked up the pitcher. "Lella dear, could you come find the other can of baking powder for me?"

"What on earth made you let her have all your money?" Lella wailed, reaching down the can from where it had always been.

"Darling, I can't understand your attitude. Don't you realize that Bessie is 20, and has never had a proposal before? You don't know gentlemen as I do. If he goes away he may meet someone else who attracts him more. Poor Bessie is not exceptionally attractive to gentlemen. I should think a sister who really had her interests at heart," said Aunt Minnie reproachfully, "and was on the brink, as we are all sure, of such a happy and suitable marriage herself, would make any sacrifice to help her sister to a good match. You have always been attractive to gentlemen, you don't realize what it is to have fewer chances to get married."

"But Aunt Minnie! Don't you realize that this man may be arrested? Do you want Bet to marry somebody with no money and no prospects, and not even a good name?" Lella tried to use the arguments that would affect her aunt most, as well as the ones which affected herself. "He came out here to avoid arrest. The police are looking for him. He got tangled up with a man that forged. As for his father, he's given him up long ago."

DUST

When the white flame in us is gone
 And we have lost the world's delight
 Stiffen indarkness left alone
 To crumble in our separate night
 When your swift hair is quiet in death,
 And through the lips corruption thrust
 Has stilled the labor of my breath
 When we are dust, when we are dust!

AT THE CLIFTONA

Treasure chests of sunken ocean liners are cut open with acetylene torches, revealing handfuls of glistening stolen pearls, in the most amazing underwater picture ever put on film, "The Best Man Wins," with Edmund Lowe and Jack Holt as the deep-sea divers, which may be seen for the first time today at the Cliftona Theatre. Lowe, in the role of a diver for jewel smugglers is caught on a sunken reef by his old diving pal, who turned harbor policeman in an effort to solve the mystery of the smuggled gems. It provides the rowdiest romantic comedy, the most dramatic climax, and the most thrilling action ever put on film beneath sea. Florence Rice, charming young actress, furnishes the feminine romantic lead in this exciting entertainment.

Dinner Stories

A young man who wished to get married wrote to his father, asking his advice. He received the following reply:

"My dear son, your mother and I would like to see you happily married. She tells me to point out the many advantages—cozy fire-side chair, slippers, pipe, etc., with your darling wife beside you. I am proud to know, my boy, that you have decided to settle down."

"P. S.—Your mother has just left the room. Keep single, you idiot!—Father."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

7-NO TRUMPS

THE FOLLOWING problem hand was dealt and played in a match at the Knickerbocker Whist club. North played the hand at 7-No Trumps. He is to go a grand slam against any opening bid by East and any subsequent defense possible. Try it.

♠ A 10 3
 ♥ A J 2
 ♦ A K Q 9
 ♣ Q 10 9

♠ K J 4 2
 ♥ K Q 7 3
 ♦ J 10
 ♣ 7 5 3

♠ Q 9 6
 ♥ 10 4
 ♣ A K J 8 6 2

Four certain diamond and 6 equally certain club tricks, with the Ace of each major suit, insure 6 odd. A single trick must be picked up for the grand slam. Either a low spade or a low heart lead will give North the added trick. In fact, any spade lead will insure the grand slam. Setting aside the two impossible opening leads, try an opening lead of the K of hearts, hoping to win a late trick in that suit or in spades. West can do nothing. Note carefully what the other three players do.

Play the 4 of hearts from dummy. Win with declarer's Ace. Take 4 rounds of winning diamonds. East may discard his lowest spade and his lowest heart. Let go dummy's 2 lowest spades. Start running 6 club tricks. On the last 3 tricks with dummy's clubs let go declarer's lowest spade and both his hearts. The last 2 card held by dummy are the Q of spades and the 10 of hearts. It is East's turn to discard from the K-J of spades and the Q of hearts. He is squeezed and the declarer must win the 2 remaining tricks, no matter which of his 3 cards East lets go. Neither an opening spade lead nor a winning heart lead can defeat the grand slam contract. The only other possible opening leads are a diamond or a club. Try both of these. Let East make an opening lead of his top diamond.

As before run off 4 diamond tricks. East may discard a single low spade and the same in hearts. Let go dummy's lowest spade and lowest heart. Now start the Vienna Coup, by leading declarer's Ace of spades. East and dummy will follow suit with the lowest spade held. Next run off dummy's 6 clubs. Declarer and East will follow suit 3 times, then they must make 3 discards. The declarer will let go everything except his A-J of hearts. East will first let go his J of spades, keeping the K, and let go the 7 of hearts, keeping his K-Q. But the last club led from dummy forces East to let go either his K of spades, making good the Q in dummy and the Ace of hearts in declarer's hand, or else East must let go one of his hearts, making good both hearts held by the declarer. No defense can prevent the grand slam. This is equally true of the opening lead of a club

How Smoke Nuisance Adds To Incidence of Rickets

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHEN IT WAS established that sunlight is an essential factor in the healthy development of children's bones and teeth, the attention of health officials was turned to the possibility of letting as much sunlight as possible filter through our modern city air in winter.

Correction of the smoke nuisance is, therefore, not simply a vague striving after cleaner air for the benefit of the lungs. It has a definite measure of prevention in mind.

The low altitude of the sun during the winter months, the short period of its appearance, the cloudiness and prevalence of fogs, have added to them this pollution of the air by smoke, soot and other particles.

The amount of this material suspended over Central Park, New York, has been calculated at 3.97 tons daily.

In Cleveland 119 tons of material per square mile per month was deposited from the atmosphere, and the department of health says, "The atmosphere in Cleveland is not nearly so polluted as that in many other cities in the United States."

That much of this nuisance can be abated is shown by the studies of Dr. Fred O. Tonnev of the Chicago department of health.

The difference between the value of sunlight as a preventive of rickets in the summer and winter has been carefully measured. In Toronto, from April to August, it is eight times as effective as from November to February.

The term "skyshine" is used to designate "the sun's rays which are reflected from the sky and clouds in contradistinction to the rays received directly from the sun itself." Skyshine is half to two-thirds as effective in preventing rickets as sunshine. Babies and growing children should, therefore, have the benefit of it, and be outdoors in the winter every day except in very severe, blizzard weather.

The altitude of the sun has a natural but marked relation to the incidence of rickets. Tidball and Brown believe that rickets will not exist or only in a very mild form, wherever the minimum noonday altitude of the sun is 30 to 35 degrees for only a few weeks of the year. In the United States places with a minimum altitude of 35 degrees lie along latitude 31 degrees 30 minutes, which runs a little north of Savannah, Ga., Montgomery, Ala.; Jackson, Miss., and El Paso, Tex.

In the northern part of the United States, Boston, Albany, Cleveland, Toledo, Chicago, etc., the noonday altitude of the sun is below 35 degrees for about four months of the year. In London it is below for five months and in Glasgow for six, and in both cities rickets is very prevalent.

Warden Thomas to Fight Case to Highest Tribunal

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—Warden Thomas, for 21 years head of Ohio Penitentiary which is being subjected to a "sweeping investigation" by Governor Martin L. Davey, declared today that he is prepared to defend his administration of the prison here before the United States Supreme court if necessary.

If suspended or dismissed because of charges growing out of the probe, Thomas asserted that he will place his appeal before the state civil service commission and, failing there, will carry it to the U. S. supreme court.

Warden Thomas disclosed his intentions as Frazier Reams, Lucas, co-prosecutor and special prison investigator for Governor Davey, continued today to pry into penitentiary conditions. Sensational charges were lodged against the warden yesterday by a convict-witness named Jimmy Wilson.

Wilson testified that narcotic traffic has existed inside the prison and charged that convicts who had testified against the warden in previous probes had later been subjected to reprisals. He also asserted that the "whole story" of the 1930 Easter Monday prison fire had not been told.

Warden Thomas has revealed that he has a long cherished hope to retire as head of the prison here and devote his time to writing.

"However," he asserted, "I shall never resign under fire."

Before the investigation started, Thomas had looked forward to possible enactment of a retirement act for state employees at the present session of the legislature. He said he had planned to retire on a pension. Warden Thomas now is 64 years old.

OUR YESTERDAYS—When the Beauty of Agnes Ayres Graced the Films of Silent Days

BACK IN the days of the silent films, when some fans still regarded them as "flickers", the star in many of the screen's sophisticated dramas was beautiful Agnes Ayres. Hailed as one of the movies' most beautiful women, Agnes took part in many outstanding film plays of the day, including "Bought and Paid For", "Cappy Ricks", "A Daughter of Luxury", and "The Lane That Has No Turning." Born in Chicago, she began her career with Essanay.

Variety In Serving A Staple Food

When it came to evaluating their food properties, potatoes were overlooked until some wise person discovered that they have greater food value than any of the substitutes suggested for them. Potatoes contain some minerals, particularly phosphorus, and vitamins that give them a recommended place for use in the diet, at least once each day. The problem is to get variety in serving potato dishes. New or untried recipes are suggested, and a collection of good ones are given here.

Baked potatoes are favorites for children, and when served with their scrubbed skins brushed with butter, they gleam with an inviting sheen.

Pittsburgh Potatoes
Cook in boiling salted water to cover, 5 minutes
Add and cook 7 minutes
Drain. Turn into buttered baking dish and pour on white sauce made with
To which add

4 Tbsp. flour
2 C. milk
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 lb. mild cheese
1/2 tsp. salt

Bake in a moderate oven until potatoes are soft.

Julienne Potatoes
Cut potatoes in matchlike pieces. Soak in cold water, dry and fry in deep hot fat until the potatoes are golden brown. Drain and serve hot.

Potato Croquettes

1/2 tsp. celery salt
Few grains cayenne
Few drops onion juice
1 egg yolk

AFTER GAS CUT

PORTSMOUTH, Jan. 25.—City council has taken steps to obtain a lower gas rate by instructing City Attorney W. L. Dickey to ask Governor Martin L. Davey to use his efforts to force a reduction. The gas rate case has been before the public utilities commission for two years.

SUNNY LIVING starts at the table

How you feel and how you look depend largely on the foods you eat. The balanced menu provides the "bulk" to prevent common constipation—caused by lack of this essential fiber.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's All-Brân is a natural food for normal individuals. It furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. All-Brân also provides vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this sunny way better than taking patent medicines? Two table-spoonfuls of All-Brân daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If relief is not obtained, see your doctor.

Serve All-Brân as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

REVOLTA TOPS STAR GOLFERS IN WEST OPEN

Cards 70 In Qualifier; Denny Shute Far Down List With 79; $4,000 Is Purse.

PRESIDIO LINKS, San Francisco, Jan. 25.—From nearly 300 golfers, the San Francisco national match play open championship was whittled to 100 today as the final 18 holes of qualifying play got under way.

The contestants today were the survivors of Wednesday's and yesterday's 18-hole rounds. The scores of their first round will be added to their total today and the low 29 will start match play tomorrow with the three champions who automatically qualified, Lawson Little, Paul Runyan and Olin Dutra.

Was the linksmen teed off Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, led the pack with a 70 for his first round, right on his heels were four players with 71's, Byron Nelson, Texarkana, Texas; Jimmy Hines, Long Island, N. Y.; Sam Parks, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa.

Other low scorers were Joe Nevi, San Francisco; Harold (Jug) McSpadden, Kansas City, Mo., and Clarence Clark, Hollywood, with 72's; Fred Wetmore, San Francisco; Jimmy Thomson, Long Beach; Johnny Dawson, Chicago, and John Foge, San Francisco, with 73's.

Dawson, was the amateur who trekked around the par 72-course with the leaders, who were shooting for $4,000 in prize money.

It is expected that those who qualify for match play will have to turn in 36-hole scores of 150 or under.

A number of well known linksmen apparently were well on the way to qualify although they were not among the low scorers so far. They included Harry Cooper, Chicago, with a 74; Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., 75; Gene Sarazen, Brookfield, Mass., 74, and Dave Martin, Los Angeles, 75.

Walter Hagen, Detroit, took a 77. The "Great Hag" was missing them on the greens. Densmore Shute, Philadelphia, carded a 79. Richard Arlen, the film actor, came in with an 82.

INDIANS SIGNING

CLEVELAND, Jan. 25 — That no-cut, some-raise policy of the Cleveland baseball club this year evidently is making a decided hit with the Indian players.

General Manager Billy Evans said today that five signed contracts have been received from the players already. The latest to reach the offices of the club was from Clint Brown, right-handed pitcher who returned from a tour of the Orient with Connie Mack's American League stars several weeks ago.

Other contracts received were from Joe Vosmik, Frank Pytlak, Mill Galtzer and Steve Sundra.

DUNDEE AND RISKO MEET

Winner To Meet Yarosz For Middleweight Title; Dundee Is Favorite.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—What figures to be a great middleweight duel will be seen tonight in the Madison Square Garden where Vince Dundee and Eddie (Babs) Risko square off.

The bout is scheduled for ten rounds. Teddy Yarosz, current titleholder, will have to box the winner, if he expects to make some money.

Dundee, a former champion, staged a remarkable comeback, so to speak, by stopping short Paul Pirrone's winning streak. The latter had beaten and knocked out Mickey Walker and was going somewhere until he met up with Dundee. Vince trounced him to a Queen's taste.

The uncrowned champion is Risky by virtue of a 7-round kayo scored over Yarosz in a Serrano, Pa., ring New Year's afternoon. He annihilated the boss of the division, scoring six knockdowns before Teddy's manager humanely intervened. He received the magnificent sum of $217. He fights to grab $4,000 or more for tonight's efforts.

Tonight's rivals weigh in at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the office of the boxing commission. Both will be under the stipulated 160 poundage.

The dearth of Risko money has changed the betting until now Dundee is an 8 to 5 choice. He'll probably go to 2 to 1 before ring time. Then the upstate lads may loosen their purse strings.

HIS TROUBLE BEHIND - By Jack Sords

About THIS and THAT By the Second Guesser

ART STEELE ILL
Arthur Steele, one of the best basketball players Circleville ever had, is seriously ill of pneumonia. It is reported.

TREK TO MARYSVILLE
Circleville high cagers are bound on a long, cold trip tonight with Marysville as the destination—Only the varsity will play—Fred Grant has returned to school after being ill early in this week and so has Charlie Styers but George Speakman was not back in the harness Thursday evening.

TEACHOUT DOWN RIVER
Bud Teachout, another Red Bird stand-by, has gone down the river, too, joining Tom Angley at Washington—Bud wants to play on the Pacific coast where he comes from and he may yet be able to make a deal.
The New Holland-Walnut game on the latter's court tonight tops the county schedule.

DRESSEN DRILLS RIGGS
Lew Riggs, who is expected to play third base for the Cincinnati Reds next summer and many summers after that, is going to get a lot of attention from Charley Dressen, Red Leg manager, who can play a lot of third base himself. An all-rookie infield is planned by the Cincinnati crew with short, Alex Kampouris at second, and Johnny Mize at first. The average age of the infielders is 23 years. In reserve will be Jim Bottomley, Gordon Slade and Tony Piet. We'll intimate at least a couple of the reserves will be in the regular lineup ere long after the season opens.

Riggs' record in the minor leagues is anything but flashy. Only once has his batting average been above the .300 mark, but his hitting has been singularly consistent at a point not far from .300. His complete minor league batting average is .289. And in the pinches he is just as good as a lot of fellows with more.

HOWARD GAGE FORWARD

One of the reasons Ohio Wesleyan is leading the Buckeye conference basketball race is the new blood that has been added to the team that won the Buckeye championship last winter.

John McAdams, Urbana, shown above, is a sophomore whose play has enabled him to displace a veteran at one of the forward positions. He is not only a keen shot but a deceptive player as well.

Howard Gage, Tiffin, is another newcomer who has helped the Newshorns ring up four successive victories in conference play. He is also a forward.

Ohio Wesleyan's next conference game will be with Miami at Delaware on Wednesday night, Feb. 6.

upper chamber statement, gangling Pat Harrison and 'The Man' Bilbo.

In last year's electioneering the two were on opposite sides. Pat, supported by ex-colleague Hubert Stephens and Bilbo harangued against them both.

But that is all forgotten now—by Pat.

Pat faces a campaign fight himself next year and the outlook is none too bright. Huey Long is openly whetting his knife for Pat, and the Kingfish is a potent figure in Mississippi. So much so that he is claiming Pat may not even run to succeed himself.

There is little likelihood of that. Pat is worried, but no one has ever accused him from running away from a fight. He will compromise if he can, but if he has to battle he will.

And he is a resourceful scrapper. Evidence at this is his arduous wooing of Bilbo.

The little, red necktie-wearing haranguer is the one man in Mississippi who can match rhetorical blows with Huey. Also he has a large and devoted following in the sticks.

So, Pat, a mighty figure in the Senate, is seeing to it that his colleague is receiving every consideration. Not only were Bilbo's committee assignment desires filled immediately, but he received the further distinction of being made senior member on each of the committees to which he was appointed.

BRUNO CRIES DENIAL

the $50,000 ransom to Hauptmann. He denied he had ever seen Col. Lindbergh or Lindbergh's close friend, Col. Henry Breckinridge, prior to his arrest.

Hauptmann paled when he was shown the baby's sleeping suit. But he denied he had ever seen it before. In a high voice that pierced the court room he cried:

"I never saw that sleeping suit until I came into the courtroom."

VOICE SHAKING

Hauptmann's voice was shaking with emotion.

About his activities on March 1, 1932, Hauptmann has not yet been called upon to explain in detail. Hauptmann said in response to a question from Reilly, that he went to the Majestic apartments on February 29, with his tools sharpened and ready to work. He left the tools there and returned the next day, March 1. He said he was told to wait, that the superintendent couldn't hire him just then but might have a job on March 15. He then left the building and returned on the fifteenth, he said. He made no attempt, however, to account for his movements the night of March 1, 1932—the time the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped.

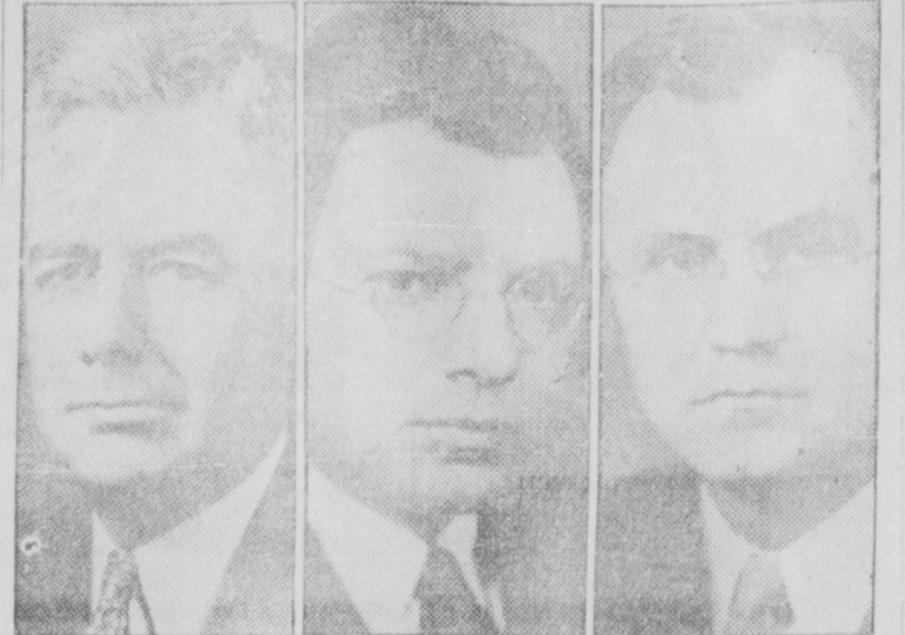

Today Hauptmann continued his fascinating story. And when he is through with his direct testimony, the prosecution will go after him with hammer and tongs. The attorneys for the state say there are many things Hauptmann will have to explain and they have no intention of sparing him.

Hauptmann's story is conceded to be the most vital part of his defense. On his impression on the jury largely will he stand or fall. But there are several other witnesses on call who the defense attorneys say will tear down a great deal of the state's extensive and detailed case.

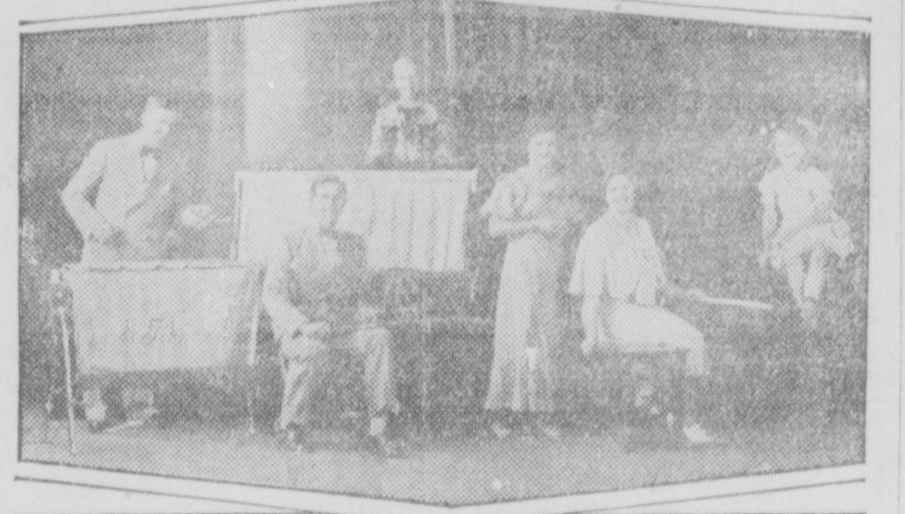

One is Ben Lupica, 21-year-old student of Hopewell, who in 1932 told authorities he saw a man driving along "Lindbergh Lane" with a ladder in his automobile the day of the kidnapping. C. Lloyd Fisher, of defense counsel, revealed today Lupica will be called to testify that Hauptmann was not the man with the ladder.

Another is Hans Kloppenberg, a Bronx carpenter who is a close friend of Hauptmann's. Kloppenberg is expected to corroborate Hauptmann's statement he was in his home the night the ransom was paid. Kloppenberg, who resembles the defendant physically, was in Flemington today.

Fun and Serious Business Feature Farm Week Program at Ohio State

M. L. Wilson, L. H. Bean, A. H. Lauterbach

THE MATHEWS FAMILY

When discussion of economic ills of the farm becomes too difficult at Farmers' Week, January 28 to February 1 at the Ohio State University, farm visitors will be able to freshen up with some light entertainment at some other session on the campus. Among the economists who have accepted a place on the Columbus program are M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture; L. H. Bean, economic advisor to the AAA, and A. H. Lauterbach, chief of the dairy section of the AAA. The group below is the Mathews family of Winamac, Indiana, whom Howard Johnson, Chicago music critic, says is America's most amazing musical family. This family provides an evening entertainment. These are four of the 300 or more attractions scheduled for the twenty-third annual Farmers' Week.

DEFENSE LAWYER'S QUARTERS BURNED

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 25—

A persistent fire almost destroyed valuable papers and records of counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, accused slayer of the Lindbergh baby, here early today.

The fire, of undetermined origin, virtually gutted the three story frame building opposite the Hunterdon-co courthouse, where Lloyd

Fisher, associate defense counsel, has his office and where many of the defense documents were kept.

Edward J. Reilly, Hauptmann's chief of counsel, was in Fisher's office on the second floor when the blaze broke out and ran to the street, clutching his coat in his hand. Fisher, who was at home, was advised of the fire and with the aid of newspaper reporters covering the trial, carried his records from the building.

WORK RELIEF ISSUE FACING SENATE FIGHT

House Passes Measure Under 'Gaz' Rule; Many Expenses May Be "Earmarked."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—The administration's $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill today faced sharp attacks, and perhaps drastic changes, by the Senate. The battle will center on the "dictatorial" power conferred upon President Roosevelt.

The measure rode rough waves in its house passage. Amendments "ear marking" funds were prevented by a "gaz" rule. But widespread dissatisfaction was disclosed in debate.

Senate Republicans have "freely" prepared to demand that the $4,880,000,000 fund, which is designed to transfer 3,500,000 persons from relief to jobs, be "earmarked" to specific projects. Another group will demand the prevailing rate of wages, instead of the $50 a month average planned by the president, be paid. A similar amendment proposed by Rep. Connery (D) of Massachusetts, lost in the house by a vote of 131 to 159.

SECOND VOTE NEEDED

House leaders were also forced to demand a second vote to defeat an amendment of Rep. Bacon (R) of New York, requiring publication in newspapers of regulations of the president, violation of which would be punishable by fine up to $5,000. On the first vote it was adopted.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Congress, Held In Check By Administration, Slow In Getting Under Way

WASHINGTON To veteran Washington observers there is a marked difference in the getting under way of this Congress from those in the past.

Other sessions by this time would be bustling with activity, committees would be busy and the clang of battle would be resounding on the floors.

But this session has got going with one yawn after another.

This is due to two reasons: First, the Administration is sitting firmly on the lid of all legislation so as to give the right of way to its program, which is being doled out piecemeal.

Second, this Congress is the first in its 148-year-old history that it has convened fresh from the polls.

Previously thirteen months and a "lame duck" session intervened before the newly-elected members took office.

This lapse of time enabled them to get acclimated and into harness. It made for a greater continuity in the tempo of Congress.

It also gave "lame duck" marauding opportunities for log-rolling, graft grabbing and other "back door" deals.

Which was why after a decade of effort, Senator George Norris' amendment abolishing "lame duck" session finally was written into the Constitution.

Surprised

Sandy haired Joe Kennedy, Boston Irish Chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, is still mopping his brow.

The House Appropriations Committee had slashed next year's grant for his Commission from $2,500,000 recommended by the Budget Bureau to $1,500,000.

After vehement protest by Joe the Committee finally added $200,000 bringing the total to $1,700,000.

This was the condition of the SEC appropriation when it went to the Senate Appropriation Committee.

Joe, insisting that unless the remaining $300,000 was granted, the work of the SEC would be seriously crippled, prepared to do battle with the Senate committee.

The outlook, however, was gloomy.

Head of the Committee is Virginia's dyspeptic Carter Glass.

Last year when the bill creating the Commission was under consideration, Carter was icy cold.

Nevertheless, Joe insisted on going before the committee.

On the way to Capitol Hill, assistants accompanying him were pessimistic.

"Joe," they said, "this guy Glass is tough. If we escape with our skins we'll be lucky."

"It certainly looks bad," Kennedy agreed. "I called the Senator at his home last night and he told me not to come. Maybe I shouldn't have come. It might irritate him."

Glass was waiting for Joe. But not in the mood he had feared.

The little Virginian was gracious, friendly, courteous.

"The Chairman of the Commission," he informed his colleagues, "has a statement to make, one I know we will all be very glad to hear."

Joe was so startled at the cordial reception that it took him several moments to collect himself.

Glass' friendliness was more than a gesture.

When the SEC appropriation was reported out by his committee, the additional $300,000 had been added to the grant.

RELIEF RUSHED AS THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS

Red Cross Fund Raised: 19 Known Dead as Flood Strikes South

EPIDEMIC IS FEARED

Mercury Expected to Rise In Midwest

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 25—Rampaging flood waters, having taken a toll of at least nineteen lives and made desolate a vast 30 mile area in the Delta country, pushed southward today to threaten a half dozen other communities.

Strenuous efforts were being made to protect Darling, Marks, Lambert, Crowder, Vance and other towns from being engulfed by the raging waters of the Coldwater river. A broken levee was letting the flood waters into Darling from the south.

From a survey made by Major T. B. Birdsong to Gov. Sennett Conner it was estimated that more than 14,000 persons were made homeless in the flood area of Coldwater basin in and about sledge.

HUNDREDS TRAPPED

Hundreds were believed still trapped in trees and on barns and houses. Rescue boats were bringing in refugees to be sheltered and fed at temporary concentration camps that dotted the higher terrain. Scores suffered from exposure.

Several cases of pneumonia were reported among the homeless refugees, and Red Cross physicians said there was danger of an epidemic of influenza. Gov. Conner requested that a Red Cross fund be raised.

Near freezing weather was expected to give way today to warmer temperatures.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25—Continued warm weather was forecast for southern California today after the mercury reached a high of 85 during the last 24 hours.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25—Middle-western states came out from under winter's severest cold wave today.

Temperatures staged a steady climb from the sub-zero readings that marked the frigid wave in the upper central states.

The weather man predicted a reading of 30 above for Chicago today.

BRICKER EXEMPTS SCHOOL LUNCHEES

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25—Food sold in school rooms operated by boards of education was held today by Attorney General John W. Bricker to be exempt from the sales tax, but the tax must be paid upon food, school supplies and on other articles sold in school stores conducted by groups of pupils, by teachers, parent-teacher groups or similar organizations.

Bricker held that the lunch rooms conducted by boards need not be licensed as "vendors" under the new sales tax law, but ruled that in the case of stores operated by groups other than the board, "vendors" licenses should be obtained and the tax collected on all articles.

WOMAN, 80, BURNS

MT. VERNON, O., Jan. 25—Mrs. Jeremiah Belt, 80, was burned to death in her home here today when her dress caught fire from a gas stove.

CRITES CROSS EXAMINATION CONTINUES IN COURT TODAY

Case To Be Adjourned This Afternoon; Appraiser On Stand Thursday.

The hearing of the suit of H. M. Crites against Crites, Inc., creditors organization, in which the local man is seeking a receiver for four canning factories and some farm property is scheduled to be adjourned late this afternoon until sometime during the week of February 4.

Mr. Crites remained on the witness stand the greater part of Thursday and was questioned throughout Friday morning. Some disinterested person entering the court room of Judge J. W. Aldins would think Mr. Crites was on trial instead of his suit. It has been a long while since an individual has been through such a strenuous cross examination as Attorney Nathan Hattenberg for Crites, Inc., has put Mr. Crites through.

Mr. Hattenberg hurled the charge this morning that while Mr. Crites was acting as an agent of Crites, Inc., he was attempting to stir up litigation.

When he will finish the cross examination is not certain. He may not conclude today.

Mr. Crites' sons, Melvin and George, have yet to testify and there are several other witnesses to be called, some by Crites Inc.

GRAND JURY CALLED

There will be no court Saturday nor can the case be resumed next week. The grand jury which has eight or ten cases to investigate has been called for Tuesday. This session will probably require only one day but attorneys in the Crites case cannot come here the latter part of the week. On February 4 a trial of the $15,000 damage suit of the estate of Russell Dowden against Robert C. Peters will begin. This may take two days and it is thought probable the trial will be resumed on Wednesday of that week.

One defense witness was interrogated Thursday afternoon interrupting Mr. Crites' cross examination. He was Robert L. Early, of the Cincinnati firm of Early and Daniels. Early appraised the Crites mill property for the First National bank of St. Louis before they were sold to the Ralston-Purina Co. He said his appraisal valued the properties as follows: S. Court St. $40,000 to $45,000; West Side, $2,000 to $2,500; E. Mount St. $1,000 to $1,500; Bell's school, $1,000 to $2,000; Kinderhook, $1,000 to $1,500; Mt. Sterling, $1,500 to $2,000; New Holland, $2,000 and Cook's station $4,000.

The Ralston-Purina Co. paid $50,000 for all the properties.

The Crites suit charges the properties were sold at a figure much lower than their actual value.

BAKER'S 'EAGLE' ORDERED REMOVED

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25—John Wrobbel of Bloomburg, who has been fined by the Fayette-county courts for violating provisions of the bakery code, was ordered to surrender his Blue Eagle by regional NRA director Benedict Crowell, the Ohio Recovery administration announced today.

Wrobbel was charged by recovery officials with working his employees 77 hours a week without overtime pay while the code stipulated a 40-hour working week. In announcing the latest development in the case, the recovery administration said:

"His chief defense seems to have been his army career, which has been extensively advertised during the litigation which has been in progress several months. This is the first case where the federal government has ordered the removal of the Blue Eagle."

Ward Liner Sinks After Crash Near Scene of Morro Tragedy

SOME FEARED DEAD

Others May Be Aboard Rescue Steamers

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—While revised figures estimated 32 persons unaccounted for in the sinking of the Ward liner Mohawk off the New Jersey coast, hope was held that the death toll would be further reduced later today.

In addition to 117 survivors brought into port aboard two res-

5 OHIOANS LISTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Five Ohioans were listed among passengers on the steamship Mohawk, which sank last night near Sea Girt, N. J., officials of the Ward line announced today.

They are: Mrs. Jeanette W. Brucker, Miss Dorothy Dunn and Miss Alice Williams, all of Mansfield; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Schrader of Cleveland.

cue vessels, an unconfirmed report said that one passenger and 21 members of the crew had been picked up by the United Fruit steamer Limon. It was reported the latter vessel had transferred the rescued to the coast guard cutter Icarus.

LINE LISTS MISSING

The Ward line officially announced that 15 passengers and 17 crew members were missing.

Ninety-five passengers and crew were brought into New York city aboard the Algonquin, sister ship of the Mohawk.

Twenty-two other survivors — one passenger and 21 members of the crew — were landed by the Chingplain at Staten Island.

There were 163 persons, 53 passengers and 110 crew members, aboard the Mohawk when she collided with the Norwegian freighter Tallman at 9:30 p. m. last night. She sank four miles off Sea Girt, N. J., not far from the graveyard of the Morro Castle, another ill-starred ship of the Ward line.

However, the figures of the Ward line did not agree with the estimate of the missing given by the division commander of the U. S. coast guard. He said that 57 persons were unaccounted for, according to his records. He added that some of this number may have been picked up by boats without the knowledge of coast guard officials.

Survivors said they believed Captain Joseph E. Wood, skipper of the Mohawk, went down with his ship, as he was still on board when the last life boat was launched.

DAVEY AIDES ON 'CARPET'

Herner To Block Confirmation Until Questions Are Answered; Jaster First.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25—Possibility that confirmation of some of Governor Davey's new department heads may be held up in the rules committee started to interfere with the new appointments.

Opposition to Mr. L. Brown, chief of the division of aid for the aged in the state welfare department was the focal point which Senator W. H. Herner (D), of Norwalk, indicated would probably stir up some discussion in the rules committee.

Herner said he intended to find out from Mrs. Margaret Allman, of Canton, new welfare director, whether Brown is to be retained as chief of the division, before he votes to recommend her confirmation by the senate.

The Norwalk senator declined to state his objections to Brown and denied that he was interested in the confirmation of any other applicant for the post. Herner added that he was one of several senators who would vote to clear up the committee.

Senator Paul P. Yoder (D) of Dayton, chairman of the rules committee, denied that there is any indication of opposition of the new appointments to be held up.

Senator Jaster (D) of Circleville, a member of the rules committee and a close department head, said only "a matter of form" he said, "I am not sure of the new appointments and I am sure the new appointments will be confirmed."

DAY REMAINS FOR RETAILER

Sales Tax Stamp Dispensaries Crowded As Deadline For Buying Approaches

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25—Ohio merchants crowded county sales tax agencies today to obtain licenses and stamps for the start of the tax collection, expected to raise $56,000,000 this year, Sunday.

With the inauguration of Ohio's new taxation program, only one day away, state officials worked feverishly to keep pace with the last-minute demands of retailers for supplies and instructions.

More than 90 per cent of the merchants in the state had obtained sales tax licenses, today and 50,000 sales tax coupons were available in the offices of county treasurers and their special agencies.

Instructions were being distributed by the sales tax inspectors and the local department of the state tax commission was working overtime to supply them on hundreds of questions that have arisen.

The state tax commission's staff, including the state tax commission inspectors, heads of state agencies, and also the county treasurers and their special agencies, are working overtime to supply them on hundreds of questions that have arisen.

ENTERS DENIAL TO NOTES AND BABY'S DEATH

Voice Quivers With Excitement as Hauptmann Replies to Reilly

"NEVER SAW CHILD"

Crowd Gasps As He Is Handed Garment

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

COURTROOM, Flemington, N. J., Jan. 25—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, in a voice quivering with excitement, denied on the witness stand today he kidnapped and murdered the Lindbergh baby. He denied, too, that he had written the ransom notes.

"No," he cried when Edward J. Reilly, chief counsel for the defense, asked him if he had ever seen the baby.

Hauptmann declared the first he knew of the kidnapping of the child was when he bought a newspaper on the morning of March 2, 1932, the day after the abduction.

The man accused of the crime which shocked the world talked in firm tones. He was the cynosure of every eye in the courtroom which was jammed to the last available inch of space. He was neatly dressed in grey and seemed composed.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh sat fifteen feet from the witness chair, his eyes never leaving the pale, poker-face of the 36-year-old carpenter who was telling his remarkable story to a jury of four women and eight men. Lindbergh's face was inscrutable.

JURY ATTENTIVE

The jury drank in Hauptmann's every word. They watched every move of the strange figure in the witness chair.

So did the spectators, most of whom were women. The quiet of the courtroom was broken only by Hauptmann's short, crisp assertions and the booming voice of his chief counsel. The spectators were an odd assortment. Some were plain folks from Hunterdon county. Others were "big shots" from Brooklyn. And, too, there was a mixture of bankers, brokers and business men here from all parts of the country.

A great galaxy of newspaper men sitting at tables stretching across the front of the courtroom and turning at right angles down to the rear of the courtroom scribbled madly as they put down on paper Hauptmann's own story for a waiting world.

A gasp came from the crowd at one point when Reilly, showing Hauptmann the Lindbergh baby's sleeping suit, asked him if he had taken it. The witness, in sharp tones, replied:

"I never saw the baby dead or alive."

Hauptmann was shown the fourteen ransom notes. He denied he had written any of them. He denied he had ever seen Dr. John "Doc" Condon, the Lindbergh attorney who testified he paid

ATE SOLONS TO BEGIN TASK MONDAY NIGHT

Only Two Bills Passed With More Than 100 In Hopper For Consideration.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—With the adoption of only two measures to their credit, members of the 91st Ohio General Assembly who have been in session for three weeks, rested today from their labors which thus far have consisted largely of adding employees to the House and Senate payroll.

In the upper house it is said the employees outnumber the 32 senators. Ratio of employees to members in the lower house, where there are 135 state representatives is not so impressive but the patronage even there far exceeds that of the previous session.

HELPS CUYAHOGA

The $19,000,000 partial appropriation bill and one giving counties permission to hold special elections to vote taxes outside the limitation for statutory welfare purposes were the two measures passed by both branches. The latter was rushed through especially to aid Cuyahoga county.

Next Monday night the lawmakers will begin considering the 127 bill introduced to date, 84 in the House and 43 in the Senate and in all probability add a dozen new ones to the list.

Almost every conceivable topic is covered by the proposed legislation, but the members, surfeited with taxation at the last session, are paying scant attention to it now. Later, when the productivity of the new sales tax is determined, they must buckle down and either extend it beyond Jan. 1, 1936, or substitute some alternative revenue-raising measure. The odds at present are heavily in favor of re-enacting the sales tax.

Observers foresaw early senate concurrence in a House bill extending the so-called mortgage moratorium from next Feb. 1 to April 1, 1937. This measure authorizes the courts to suspend the order for sale of homes on which mortgages are foreclosed.

After passing Sen. W. H. Her-ner's bill to pay agents one per cent instead of one-tenth of one per cent for handling prepaid sales tax receipts, the senate decided that one per cent in some cases would be excessive and recalled the bill from the house.

Mayor Harry L. Davis of Cleveland suffered a momentary setback when the House refused to pass the Pollock bill until after it had been examined by the House taxation committee. This measure, designed especially to aid Cleveland, would permit cities at a special election to vote deficiency bond issues by a bare majority to provide money for current operating expenses.

Rep. W. M. Boyd (D) Cleveland, introduced the first bill to alter the new sales tax act. It provides for the exemption of all food except that sold in restaurants. The law now exempts only bread and milk among foods.

A measure certain to prove popular with officeholders was sponsored by Rep. Jesse Gilbert (D) Dayton, to fix the term of all county officials at four years. Many now serve only two years.

DOWN-HEARTED? A UNANIMOUS NO!

It may be hard to teach your legs to do things after they've had a battle with a flock of infantile paralysis germs, but little Carrie Surlak of New York isn't downhearted about it, as the picture (lower left) plainly indicates. Carrie is showing her legs a thing or two with the help of Miss Constance Huerstel. Nor has she anything on the 15-year-old lad smiling from a respirator (right). He is Herbert

Fuchs, also of New York. Two smiling youngsters (upper left) their legs in braces, partake of their midday luncheon at Camp Allyn for Crippled Children in Cincinnati, Ohio. These four and more than 200,000 fellow-sufferers throughout the nation will be beneficiaries of the 1935 Birthday Ball for the President, Jan. 30, when more than 5,000 communities from coast to coast unite to raise funds for fighting what Col. Henry L. Doherly, national chairman of the Birthday Ball committee, calls "the most-dreaded disease menacing the nation". Seventy cents of every dollar raised will be retained by local communities to rehabilitate infantile paralysis victims, while thirty cents of every dollar will be turned over to a Birthday Ball Commission for infantile paralysis research appointed by the President.

MONROE-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

The per cent of attendance has been lowered quite a bit this week due to whooping cough and colds.

Material is being secured for the two programs in February, one on Feb. 14, for P.T.A. and the other Feb. 22 in one room.

SOCIAL NEWS

The program of the Parent-Teacher Association at Monroe school on Jan. 17, was the best given this year as the members themselves showed that they each had talents of their own. Mrs. Bessie McCoy gave a piano selection, "The Minuet in G." Mrs. Marie Dick recited one of her favorite poems, "The Children's Hour." The old-fashioned spelling class was very well portrayed by Mrs. Marie Walters as the teacher, Alvin Sanders, Bertha Porter, Faye Burchnell, Elizabeth Hosler, Nellie

Barton, Albert Burchnell and Robert Barton as her pupils. A short reading by Mrs. Josie Drake, Mrs. Lulu Sheets proved herself a talented musician in her piano interpretation of the Burning of Rome. Earl Liston had many of the members thinking up answers to his questions from the query box. Mr. Perry Lewis gave an interesting selection of his original poems of Monroe township. Mr. Barton assisted by Robert and Joseph Walters, and Mr. Sanders, gave several most amusing musical selections. The finale was a song by the entire group of entertainers.

The honor students for the 3rd six weeks and the first semester in the Junior class are: Opal Hamilton, Mary L. Storer, Cleo Crawford, Mabel Downs, Louise Zimmerman, Cloise Hosler, Mary M. Parrett.

The third six weeks and semester honor roll for the Senior class is as follows: Violet Thompson, Mary J. Walters, Cleo Timmons.

The honor students of the Freshmen are: Ruth Haller, Betty Seward, Weldon Hill, Grace Pearl,

Carl Hosler, Urcel McGath, Elizabeth Carter; first semester, Carl Hosler, Urcel McGath, Elizabeth Carter.

The honor students of the Sophomores for the third six weeks are: Kathryn Knesley and Hazel Smith.

The ending of the first semester brought to a close the Physical Geography and Community Civics for the high school and Hygiene for the eighth grade.

Geography and Hygiene have been replaced by Agriculture, and Occupations blend very well with the former Civics course.

In the Occupations class each member is working on a chosen occupation, studying its value, future, and other features in that particular field. It will cause the pupil an extreme amount of research to bring the study to completion.

Both the boys and girls teams of Monroe were defeated by Darbyville last Friday night on the Darby floor. The final scores were Girls, 14-7; Boys, 32-4.

REED CRITICIZED BY 2 EXAMINERS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—Criticism of Rev. T. O. Reed's administration as superintendent of the Jacksonpk workhouse is included in the report of George Rector and Floyd B. Paul, state examiners, who also found Reed owes the institution $90. The report states that Reed has accepted prisoners from Urbana without a contract, that he does not properly keep records and that it appears that candy and tobacco are sold at the workhouse for a personal profit.

Colds That Hang On

Don't let them get started. Fight them quickly. Creomulsion combines a helps in one, powerful but harmless. Pleasant to take. No narcotics. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. (adv.)

A Doctor Knows!

And doctors use a liquid laxative

There's a very good reason why doctors and hospitals have always used liquid laxatives! You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

People who have experienced this comfort, never return to any form of help that can't be regulated! The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit—even in children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. It's the ideal family laxative because it's a family doctor's prescription, and perfectly safe and effective for family use.

If you are seeking something that will relieve your occasional upsets safely and comfortably, try Syrup Pepsin. Give regulated doses until Nature restores regularity.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

A section of the department where Chesterfield tobaccos are blended and cross-blended.

Just what is meant by cross-blending tobaccos...and how does it make a cigarette milder and taste better...

Well, in blending you take two or more tobaccos and mix them together—a rather simple process. But cross-blending goes a step further...

In making Chesterfields we take Bright tobacco from Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida. We take Burley tobacco from Kentucky and Tennessee, and tobacco from Southern Maryland.

Then in addition to these home-grown tobaccos we take tobacco grown in Turkey and Greece.

We balance these mild, ripe home-grown tobaccos with the right amounts and the right kinds of aromatic Turkish.

Then, instead of just mixing the tobaccos together, we blend and cross-blend them so that all the different flavors go together into one full flavor—the Chesterfield taste that so many smokers like.

Cross-blending tobaccos as it is done in Chesterfields gives the cigarette a pleasing taste and aroma—they're mild and yet They Satisfy.

PATTERN 9237
A house frock, when it's nicely tailored and has a bit of flattery besides in the way of prettily scalloped collar and cuffs, steps right out of the class of purely practical clothes and becomes charmingly feminine. And this clever design has further appeal—for it's slenderizing, too. Notice the way the front seam of the skirt tucks out into a chic triangle, a detail that does grand things for larger hips! The pointed bodice closing repeats this slimming motif above the waist. And don't overlook that trim slit pleat that insures plenty of room in the back bodice—and the perky little inverted pleat at the back of the skirt for freedom.
Pattern 9237 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 36 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

She Trains Leaders

Miss Julia Capen

Miss Julia Capen is secretary with the National Young Women's Christian association, and specializes in the training of volunteer leaders. She recently returned to New York from Texas and Oklahoma, where she held seminars on the work. The young women who, when they were young, took an active part in club work, are many of them using their leisure time in helping with community programs, she states. "One of the most convincing arguments for the programs of character building agencies, such as the Y. W. C. A., is found in the number of young women who, because of their participation in such organizations, are now interested in giving their spare time and becoming leaders in the work," says Miss Capen.

Vendors' Licenses

A LARGE number of business people in this community are due for a rude shock when they finally awaken to the definite provisions of the new Ohio bracketed retail sales tax which becomes effective Saturday, at midnight.

Records in the office of the county auditor show that many business men have not yet taken out the retail vendors' licenses which are definitely required by the act, and without which no one can sell at retail after next Saturday.

The law requires that every person or corporation making sales at retail must have a license. This includes not only operators of places which are generally regarded as retail stores, but covers as well manufacturers, wholesalers, many service industries, itinerants, canvassers, restaurants, boarding houses, bars, and many other places which are commonly regarded as retail establishments. Any person or concern which sells tangible personal property to the final consumer, unless his sales are limited to the specifically exempted items, must take out this license.

Without such a license, these vendors cannot secure from the county treasurer a supply of the new prepaid tax receipts issued by the state of Ohio, which must be used after Saturday in connection of the new bracketed sales tax. The law requires every person selling at retail to collect the full amount of the bracketed tax on each transaction and to give the consumer a receipt in the form of one of these state-issued coupons. These are now on sale to licensed retail vendors at the county treasurer's office.

The state has ample means to compel all business men to comply with this new law. Those who sell to the final consumer and who do not collect the tax in the manner prescribed, may be subjected to fine and imprisonment. Furthermore, state inspectors have a complete right to enter any establishment and assess the vendor the full amount of the tax which he should have collected, plus a heavy penalty. A large corp of state inspectors will be on the job from the start, and ignorance of the law will be no defense against prosecution.

Wages On Public Projects

BEING somewhat of a star-gazing utopian, Norman Thomas, an enlightened gentleman whose idealism is not to be questioned, has deftly evaded a discussion of the practical phases of the president's plan for the employment of men on public works at "security wages."

Through the fulfillment of this plan, Mr. Thomas charges, the United States government will become "the outstanding force in lowering the American standard of living." At the same time, he insists, it will deliver a devastating blow at the principle of high wages in private employment and will hasten the processes of regimentation.

His comment is interesting, but deficient in major respects. Instead of so-called "security wages," what compensation would he pay the millions who would be the beneficiaries of the president's plan? Would he establish a generous wage scale to provide all of the necessities and some of the luxuries of life? And, if so, from whence would the money come?

These are intensely practical questions, and if Mr. Thomas is disposed to be critical of the president's plan he should at least be ready with acceptable answers. In fact, higher wages than those proposed cannot be paid and it is questionable if they are desirable.

The administration and the country had an unfortunate experience with the CWA last winter, when the wage scale seriously interfered with private industry in some sections and moderately in others. The public projects should be made to bridge the gap between direct relief or the dole and a real job in private industry. That objective justifies the principle enunciated by the president on the matter of compensation.

This principle is that the pay of the unemployed to be given work on the public emergency projects "should be larger than the amount now received as a relief dole," but not so large "as to encourage the rejection of opportunities for private employment or the leaving of private employment to engage in government work."

Fred Perry is the latest tennis player would turn amateur, that might be news.

Who can recall the good old days when a billion-dollar congress was accepted as the forerunner of doom?

The gold issue is immensely interesting at the moment, but for many of us, unfortunately, the interest is altogether too academic.

Little Sister

by MARGARET WIDEMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Leila Madison, an orphan, has been trying to halt the elopement of her reckless young sister, Betty, with Addison Huntington, a gambler, called Jerry Redmond, a newspaper reporter, has been aiding Leila because of his friendship for Addison's brother who was Jerry's college roommate. They are all at Leila's Westchester home where Addison and Jerry meet Aunt Minnie and her neighbor, Mrs. Johnston-Heddes, mother of Lillian Johnston-Heddes, whom Leila expects to marry. They have come from Betty's New York apartment where Addison, disguised as a clerk, narrowly escaped the police who sought him for questioning in connection with the whereabouts of an acquaintance named Jarecki, an attorney for a certain Mrs. Minnie Leila Addison. The police were looking for him about the involvement and how the old residents of Fernwood Manor are trying to keep their bathing beach exclusive property. This shocks Addison's socialist philosophy. Jerry phones next day and announces that he is leaving Leila. Leila Addison drops in to see Leila. Lillian hints at a formal proposal but Leila isn't as excited as she expected to be. The next day Jerry arrives for them and drives off with Leila. Leila finds herself enjoying her interlude. As Jerry's mountain car pulls away, Leila's heart beats faster. Jerry notices the world and how he embraces Leila. As he bids her good-bye at the suburban station, he abruptly brings them both back to earth. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

LEILA LAY awake that night contemplating Mayan dream-temple and Chinese dream-banquets so long that she awakened later than usual next morning. The factitious summer warmth was gone; it was dark and chilly even for April, and they had turned off the oil heater the night before. She must get up and turn it on.

She was arrested midway in her dressing by the amazing portent of Betty's voice at the bottom of the stairs, announcing that she would be late for breakfast if she didn't hurry. This from Betty, who usually had to be wakened twice to greet her own tray! She was up-of course-to see the last of Addison. Well, that would be a pleasant sight. Leila slipped herself into her sweater and went down two flights of stairs and turned the heater on. Then she came back up to the kitchen, where she and Aunt Minnie usually ate their casual breakfasts. Nobody there.

The dining room was bright with electric light and a hearth fire against the dullness, and Aunt Minnie in her festive gingham was behind the percolator. Addison and Betty, ostensibly content considering what nuisances they were, sat, also fresh and domesticated, eating largely of waffles on either side of Aunt Minnie. Addison was making them out of the pitcher of batter, indeed, and pressing them fondly on Betty. Nobody ever had looked so neat as Addison in his fresh pink shirt and perfectly pressed light gray suit, his narrow shoulders and high-collared neck exposed very straight and high. But he had never looked so neat as he did this morning. If a hairpin shot, he snatched it furiously and slid it back before her. Addison could see. Leila dropped into her seat with a feeling almost of intrusion, though all three greeted her brightly. Well, it was temporary. All of it, though, goodness.

"When do you go, Addison?" she asked.

"I don't think you are very pitiable," she said. "Aunt Minnie's eyebrows and the same."

"We have all changed our plans," said Addison with his air of this being a favor he granted her.

"To what?" asked Leila with the hard-learned quietness life with her had taught her.

But he said joyously before he could answer, while Aunt Minnie beamed. "Oh, Leila, he's going to stay."

"You anticipate me a little, Elizabeth," said Addison with his air of Victorian proof. "My dear Leila, I cannot feel that a little personal risk counts against doing good to humanity. Making for the underdog. So yesterday, acting on the information given us by Mrs. Johnston-Heddes, whom I know to be sufficiently broad to continue to give me the personal regard she has at ready shown, no matter what our public antagonisms may be, Elizabeth and I took steps to be able to fight the Fernwood Manor group which is withholding sun, air, and recreation from the people of Fernwood areas. This means I shall have to stay till the October village meeting, and—"

"It asked, lead the opposition," said Addison.

"But you couldn't," Leila said.

"You have to be a property holder," he said.

"In a case like this we must give ground to gain it. Or rather," said Addison, smiling at her, "gain ground to give it, speaking literally. Yesterday, with the help of a very charming young woman of advanced views, a Miss Sternberg, Elizabeth and I purchased a tract on the edge of Fernwood gardens."

Leila stared at him.

"You bought lots? What? Where? When? How did you get the money?"

He answered categorically, with modest pride.

"About four acres of marshland on the edge of the sound, just beyond Fernwood Gardens. Fernwood Waters, our friend called it. Of course, there are searches, I think she said, and other formalities, which will take a week or 10 days to complete, but the actual purchase took place yesterday. It did not seem necessary to do more than go down and look at the tract, as my purpose was not anything more than holding it, so that I might have the right to vote at the meeting of property holders scheduled to take place in October. As I understand the issue, if a majority of property holders of the Fernwood gardens vote that the Manor has no right to keep its beach for itself, the beach is freed. I also understand that if sufficient tracts of land in my property have various owners, it will in all probability swing the election in the right direction. Miss Sternberg is very intelligent, she explained everything to us."

She interrupted him in horror. "The Church marshlands! With all those little provisions in old Mr. Church's will? And where did you get the money? Did you use what Jerry brought you?"

Leila said, "A thousand dollars. A fresh start in California seemed to me negligible beside the opportunity of doing this civic duty. Also—"

"We took my bonds," proclaimed Betty proudly. "My $5,000, and Aunt Minnie's $10,000. Jerry's wasn't enough money, so I got my bonds out from Aunt Minnie's safe, and she lent hers and it just did it."

The three faces turned to her brightly.

"It will be so wonderful to have a man around the house," added Aunt Minnie.

"You've done a dishonorable thing as well as a risky one," Leila said to them. "Remember, that money wasn't loaned you to buy lots of land. And the interest on those bonds dressed you and fed you, Betty, you little fool, and paid all of your studio rent I didn't pay."

"You are talking like a very selfish woman," Betty said, even more angrily.

"Hush, darling," said Addison gently. "Remember she doesn't understand. We will say no more. Look: your ideas and ours are incompatible. Aunt Minnie, could I ask you for the materials for two more waffles? The air out here is giving me an appetite."

"That's splendid," said Aunt Minnie, and picked up the pitcher.

"Leila dear, could you come find the other can of baking powder for me?"

"What on earth made you let her have all your money?" Leila asked, reaching down the can from where it had always been.

"Darling, I can't understand your attitude. Don't you realize that Bessie is 20, and has never had a proposal before? You don't know gentlemen as I do. If he goes away he may meet someone else who attracts him more. Poor Bessie is not exceptionally attractive to gentlemen. I should think a sister who really had her interests at heart," said Aunt Minnie reproachfully, "and was on the brink, as we are all sure, of such a happy and suitable marriage herself, would make good use of the money to help her sister to a good match. You have always been attractive to gentlemen, you don't realize what it is to have fewer chances to get married."

"But Aunt Minnie! Don't you realize that this man may be arrested? Do you want Betty to marry somebody with no money and no prospects, and not even a good name?" Leila tried to use the arguments that would affect her aunt most, as well as the ones which affected herself. "He came out here to avoid arrest. The police are looking for him. He got tangled up with a man named Jarecki. As for his father, he's been living up long ago."

Treasure chests of sunken ocean liners are cut open with acetylene torches, revealing handfuls of glittering stolen pearls, in the most amazing underwater picture ever put on film, "The Best Man Wins," with Edmund Lowe and Jack Holt as the deep sea divers, which may be seen for the first time today at the Cliftona Theatre. Lowe, in the role of a diver for jewel smugglers is caught on a sunken reef by his old diving pal, who turned harbor policeman in an effort to solve the mystery of the smuggled gems. How Smoke Nuisance Adds To Incidence of Rickets

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHEN IT WAS established that sunlight is an essential factor in the healthy development of children's bones and teeth, the attention of health officials was turned to the possibility of letting as much sunlight as possible filter through our murky city air in winter.

Correction of the smoke nuisance, is therefore, not simply a vague striving after cleaner air for the benefit of the lungs. It has a definite measure of prevention in mind.

The low altitude of the sun during the winter months, the short period of its appearance, the cloudiness and prevalence of fogs, have added to them this pollution of the air by smoke, soot and other particles.

The amount of this material suspended over Central Park, New York, has been calculated at 237 tons daily.

In Cleveland 119 tons of material per square mile per month was deposited from the atmosphere, and the department of health says, "The atmosphere in Cleveland is not nearly so polluted as that in many other cities in the United States."

That much of this nuisance can be abated is shown by the studies of Dr. Fred O. Toney of the Chicago department of health.

The difference between the value of sunlight as a preventive of rickets in the summer and winter has been carefully measured. In lowest heart. Let go dummy's 2 lowest spades. Start running 6 club tricks. On the last 3 tricks with dummy's clubs to go declarer's lowest spade and both his hearts. The last 2 card held by dummy are the Q of spades and the 10 of hearts. It is East's turn to discard from the K-J of spades and the Q of hearts. He is squeezed and the declarer must win the 2 remaining tricks, no matter which of his 3 cards East lets go. Neither an opened spade lead nor an opening heart lead can defeat the grand slam contract. The only other possible opening leads are a diamond or a club. Try both of these. Let East make an opening lead of his top diamond.

As before, run off 4 diamond tricks. East may discard a single low spade and the same in hearts. Let go dummy's lowest spade and lowest heart. Now start the Vienna Coup, by leading declarer's Ace of spades. East and dummy will follow suit with the lowest spade held. Next run off dummy's 6 clubs. Declarer and East will follow suit a time and they must make 3 discards. The declarer will let go everything except his A-J of hearts. East will first let go his J of spades, keeping the K, and let go the 7 of clubs, keeping his K-Q. But the last club led from dummy forces East to let go either his K of spades, making good the Q in dummy and the Ace of hearts in declarer's hand, or else East must let go one of his hearts, making good both hearts held by the declarer. No defense can prevent the grand slam. This is equally true of the opening lead of a club

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE term "skyscraper" is used to designate "the sun's rays which are reflected from the sky and clouds in contradistinction to the rays received directly from the sun itself." Skyscraper is half to two-thirds as effective in preventing rickets as sunshine. Babies and growing children should, therefore, have the benefit of it, and be outdoors in the winter every day except in very severe, lizzardy weather.

The altitude of the sun has a natural but marked relation to the incidence of rickets. Tisdall and Brown believe that rickets will not exist, or only in a very mild form, wherever the minimum noonday altitude of the sun is 50 to 35 degrees for only a few weeks of the year. In the United States places with a minimum altitude of 35 degrees lie along latitude 41 degrees 10 minutes, which runs a little north of Savannah, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Jackson, Miss., and El Paso, Tex.

In the northern part of the United States, Boston, Albany, Cleveland, Toledo, Chicago, etc., the noonday altitude of the sun is below 35 degrees for about four months of the year. In London it is below for five months and in Glasgow for six, and in both cities rickets is very prevalent.

Dispute still rages as to the efficiency of a dust mulch for conserving moisture. Experiments at the Ohio State university indicate such a mulch pays on heavy soils that tend to cake and crack badly.

Warden Thomas to Fight Case to Highest Tribunal

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—Warning for the state civil service commission that prison probes cause unrest among convicts, Warden Preston L. Thomas, for 21 years head of Ohio Penitentiary which is being subjected to a "sweeping investigation" by Governor Martin L. Davey, declared today that he is prepared to defend his administration of the prison here before the United States Supreme court if necessary.

If suspended or dismissed because of charges growing out of the probe, Thomas asserted that he first will place his appeal before the state civil service commission and, failing there, will carry it to the U. S. supreme court.

Warden Thomas disclosed his intentions as Frazier Reams, Lucas county prosecutor and special prison investigator for Governor Davey, continued today to pry into penitentiary conditions. Sensational charges were lodged against the warden yesterday by a convict-witness named Jimmy Wilson.

Wilson testified that narcotic traffic has existed inside the prison and charged that convicts who had testified against the warden in previous probes had later been subjected to reprisals. He also asserted that the "whole story" of the 1930 Easter Monday prison fire had not been told.

Warden Thomas has revealed that he has a long cherished hope to retire as head of the prison here and devote his time to writing.

"However," he asserted, "I shall never resign under fire."

Before the investigation started, Thomas had looked forward to possible enactment of a retirement act for state employees at the present session of the legislature. He said he had planned to retire on a pension. Warden Thomas now is 64 years old.

Variety In Serving A Staple Food

When it came to evaluating their food properties, potatoes were overlooked until some wise person discovered that they have greater food value than any of the substitutes suggested for them. Potatoes contain some minerals, particularly phosphorus, and vitamins that give them a recommended place for use in the diet, at least once each day. The problem is to get variety in serving potato dishes. New or untried recipes are suggested, and a collection of good ones are given here.

Baked potatoes are favorites for children, and when served with their scrubbed skins brushed with butter, they gleam with an inviting sheen.

Pittsburgh Potatoes
Cook in boiling salted water to cover, 5 minutes.
1 qt. 1/2 inch potato cubes
1 onion, finely chopped

Add and cook 7 minutes
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 tsp. celery salt
1/2 tsp. onion juice
1 egg yolk
1 tsp. finely chopped parsley

Drain. Turn into buttered baking dish and pour on white sauce made with:
4 Tbsp. butter
4 Tbsp. flour
2 C. milk
1/2 tsp. salt

To which add:
1/2 lb. mild cheese
1/2 tsp. salt

Bake in a moderate oven until potatoes are soft.

Julienne Potatoes
Cut potatoes in matchlike pieces. Soak in cold water; dry and fry in deep hot fat until the potatoes are golden brown. Drain and serve hot.

Potato Croquettes
2 C. hot rice potatoes
2 Tbsp. butter
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 tsp. celery salt
1/2 tsp. onion juice
1 egg yolk
1 tsp. finely chopped parsley

Beat together thoroughly. Shape into croquettes. Crumb them and fry 1 minute. Drain and serve hot.

Potatoes a la Suisse (Swiss)
Bake 3 large flat potatoes 40 minutes at 450 degrees or until soft. Remove from the oven, cut in half lengthwise, scoop out inside and mash.

Add:
1 Tbsp. butter
1 Tbsp. hot milk
Salt and pepper

Slip a raw egg into each potato shell. Force potato mixture through pastry bag and tube around edge. Bake until eggs are set.

Potato Pancakes
Gentle:
1 medium sized potatoes
1 Tbsp. flour
1 Tbsp. cream
1 egg
1 tsp. salt

Stir well. Cook by spoonfuls in hot fat, in a heavy frying pan.

Potato Apples
2 C. hot rice potatoes
2 Tbsp. butter
1 C. grated cheese
1/2 tsp. salt
Few grains cayenne
Slight grating of nutmeg
2 Tbsp. thick cream
2 egg yolks

Mix together and beat thoroughly.

Shape in the form of small apples. Roll in flour, egg and crumbs, and fry like croquettes. Insert a clove at both stem and blossom end of each apple.

AFTER GAS CUT

PORTSMOUTH, Jan. 25.—City council has taken steps to obtain a lower gas rate by instructing City Attorney W. L. Dickey to ask Governor Martin L. Davey to use his efforts to force a reduction. The gas rate case has been before the public utilities commission for two years.

SUNNY LIVING

starts at the table

How you feel and how you look depend largely on the foods you eat. The balanced menu provides the "bulk" to prevent common constipation—caused by lack of this essential fiber.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's All-Bran is a natural food for normal individuals. It furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. All-Bran also provides vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this sunny way better than taking patent medicines? Two table-spoonfuls of All-Bran daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If relief is not obtained, see your doctor.

Serve All-Bran as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BRUNO CRIES DENIAL WORK RELIEF

the $50,000 ransom to Hauptmann. He denied he had ever seen O. J. Lindbergh or Lindbergh's close friend, Col. Henry B. Knibbs, prior to his arrest.

Hauptmann paled when he was shown the baby's sleeping suit. But he denied he had ever seen it before. In a high voice that pleased the court, he cried:

"I never saw that sleeping suit until I came into this court room."

VOICE SHAKING

Hauptmann's voice was shaking with emotion. He said he had been called up to the stand on Feb. 1, 1932, Hauptmann said in response to a question from Reilly, that he went to the Majestic apartments on February 29, with his tools sharpened and ready to work. He left the tools there and returned the next day, March 1. He said he was told to wait, that the superintendent couldn't hire him just then but might have a job on March 15. He then left the building and returned on the fifteenth, he said. He made no attempt, however, to account for his movements the night of March 1, 1932, the date the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped.

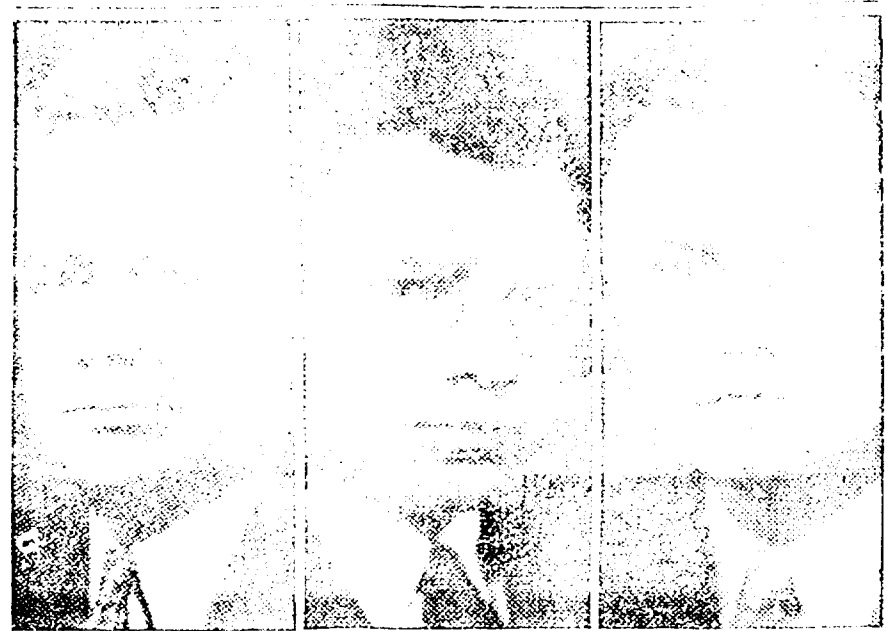

Today Hauptmann continued his fascinating story. And when he was through with his direct testimony, the prosecution will go after him with hammer and tongs. The attorneys for the state say there are many things Hauptmann will have to explain and they have no intention of sparing him.

Hauptmann's story is conceded to be the most vital part of his defense. On his impression on the jury largely will he stand or fall. But there are several other witnesses on call who the defense attorneys say will tear down a great deal of the state's extensive and detailed case.

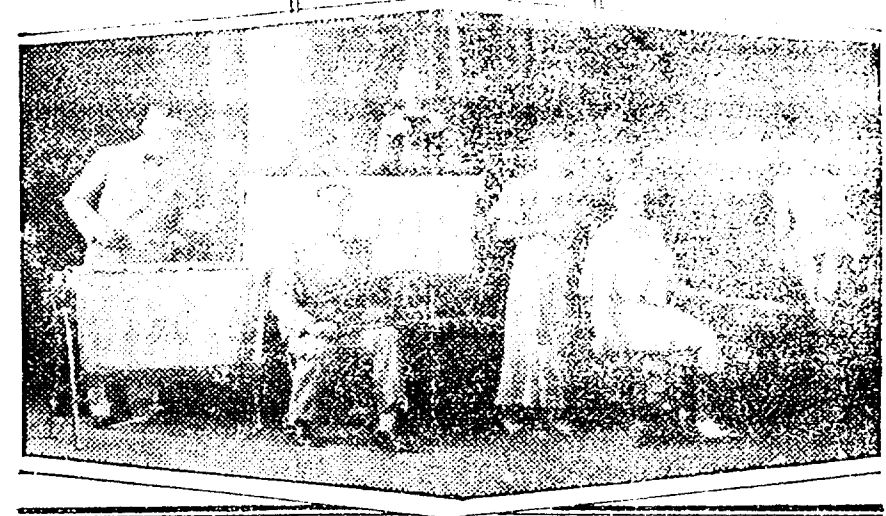

One is Ben Lupica, 21-year-old student of Hopewell, who in 1932 told authorities he saw a man driving along "Lindbergh Lane" with a ladder in his automobile the day of the kidnapping. C. Lloyd Fisher, of defense counsel, revealed today Lupica will be called to testify that Hauptmann was not the man with the ladder.

Another is Hans Kloppenberg, a Bronx carpenter who is a close friend of Hauptmann's. Kloppenberg is expected to corroborate Hauptmann's statement he was in his home the night the ransom was paid. Kloppenberg, who resembles the defendant physically, was in Flemington today.

Fun and Serious Business Feature Farm Week Program at Ohio State

M. L. WILSON, L. H. BEAN, H. H. LAUTERBACH

THE MATHWS FAMILY

When discussion of economic ills of the farm becomes too difficult at Farmers' Week, January 28 to February 1 at the Ohio State University, farm visitors will be able to freshen up with some light entertainment at some other session on the campus. Among the economists who have accepted a place on the Columbus program are M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture, L. H. Bean, economic advisor to the AAA, and A. H. Lauterbach, chief of the dairy section of the AAA. The group below is the Mathews family of Winamac, Indiana, whom Howard Johnson, Chicago music critic, says is America's most amazing musical family. This family provides an evening entertainment. These are four of the 300 or more attractions scheduled for the twenty-third annual Farmers' Week.

DEFENSE LAWYER'S QUARTERS BURNED

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 25—

A persistent fire almost destroyed valuable papers and records of counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, accused slayer of the Lindbergh baby, here early today.

The fire, of undetermined origin, virtually gutted the three-story frame building opposite the Henderson courthouse, where Lloyd

Fisher, associate defense counsel, has his office and where many of the defense documents were kept.

Edward J. Reilly, Hauptmann's chief of counsel, was in Fisher's office on the second floor when the blaze broke out and ran to the street, clutching his coat in his hand. Fisher, who was at home, was advised of the fire and with the aid of newspaper reporters covering the trial, carried his records from the building.

The fire, of undetermined origin, virtually gutted the three-story frame building opposite the Henderson courthouse, where Lloyd

ISSUE FACING SENATE FIGHT

House Passes Measure Under 'Co.' But Many Expenses May Be 'Marked'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Senate today faced the issue of whether it should pass a bill to transfer $2,000,000 of the federal reserve funds to the War Relocation Authority.

The measure, which would transfer the funds to the War Relocation Authority, was passed by the House today.

Senate Republicans have prepared to demand that the $2,000,000 be transferred to the War Relocation Authority, but they are not sure they can get the measure passed.

House leaders were also forced to demand a second vote to defeat an amendment of Rep. Bacon (R) of New York, requiring publication in newspapers of regulations of the president, violation of which would be punishable by fine up to $5,000. On the first vote it was adopted.
